Thomas M. Class – Special Agent in Charge, Dallas FBI Field Office

Thomas entered on duty with the FBI as a Special Agent in January 1990, where he was assigned to the Atlanta Division, Columbus Resident Agency. He investigated a wide variety of criminal and national security matters, and served as a firearms and general police instructor. In October 2005, he was promoted to Supervisory Special Agent in the Counterterrorism Division's International Terrorism Operations Section at FBI Headquarters. In that role, served as Program Manager for terrorism investigations throughout the Midwest. In October 2007, he transferred to the Birmingham Division and served as a Supervisory Special Agent overseeing investigations of all white-collar crime, public corruption, civil rights, and critical incident response matters within the Northern District of Alabama. In June 2011, he was promoted to Assistant Special Agent in Charge of the Mobile Division's National Security Branch with investigative and administrative oversight of all counterterrorism, counterintelligence, cyber, critical incident, human intelligence, and field intelligence matters within the Middle and Southern Districts of Alabama. In August 2013, Thomas was promoted into the FBI's Senior Executive Service in the National Security Branch, where he served as the Director of the High Value Detainee Interrogation Group, an FBI-lead interagency group that deploys worldwide the nation's best interrogation resources against significant counterterrorism targets in custody. On January 8, 2015, Director Comey designated him as Special Agent in Charge of the Dallas Division. Prior to entering the FBI, he served as a police officer and detective with the St. Petersburg Florida Police Department. He received a bachelor's degree in criminal justice from the University of South Florida in 1981, and a master's degree in public administration from Columbus State University in 1994. Thomas is married with three children.

9:45 Morning Break – Coffee and Networking

10:00 Session 1: David Blackorby – Vice President, Global Security Operations - Walmart

Session: Leveraging a Global Supply Chain Security Program in a Volatile World

Dave currently serves as Vice President of Global Security Operations. This position is accountable for establishing the strategy to protect and manage risk for the Global Merchandising Centers function, global sourcing supply chain, and Global ecommerce. Dave's focus is on running the core global sourcing asset protection and security business and interacting with the global operations to ensure appropriate measures are in place to mitigate risk related to personal security, facilities and physical security, transportation and information security. Dave joined Walmart in August, 2007 as Associate General Counsel in the Walmart Legal Department assigned to Wal-Mart's Global Security, Aviation and Travel Division. Dave was promoted in February 2009 to Vice President/General Counsel of Global Security, Aviation/Travel & Ethics. In January 2011 Dave was promoted to his current role. Prior to joining Walmart, Dave worked for the U.S. Department of Justice with his last assignment as the Chief of the Criminal Division for the U.S. Attorney's office for the Western District of Arkansas. He also worked in the IRS Criminal Investigation Division prior to joining the U.S. Attorney's office. Dave serves as committee chair of Walmart's Native American Associate Resource group and recently retired as a Brigadier General in the Army National Guard.

11:00 Session 2: Liz D'Aloia – Founder, HR Virtuoso Company

Session: An HR and Employment Guide to the 2016 Political Season

Liz founded HR Virtuoso to help companies optimize their employment application processes.

HR Virtuoso creates customized, company-branded short form employment applications that work on any mobile device. Candidates enter the system through a traditional online posting, a QR code, or a text number, and are instantly transported to an application process -- which only takes about 5 minutes to complete. Since it's so easy to apply, the company receives far more applications than through a traditional applicant tracking system or paper-based process.

Prior to launching HR Virtuoso, Liz rose through the ranks of transportation, retail, and mortgage companies as a Senior Employment Attorney and VP of HR. She holds a BA from Hampshire College and a JD from Brooklyn Law School. She is admitted to practice in Texas, New York, New Jersey, Florida, and Kansas. Liz is a nationally recognized blogger, speaker, and HR practitioner.

Noon Lunch and Networking Sponsored by

Session 3: Steven Krupinsky – Chief, International Branch U.S Customs & Border Protection/Dept. of Homeland Security

Session: Terrorism and the Supply Chain

Steven Krupinsky began his law enforcement career in 2002 with the former U.S. Customs Service as an Inspector/Officer, stationed at Port Everglades, FL. During that time he worked for the Anti-Terrorism Contraband Enforcement Team. His major duties included inspecting and verifying inbound and outbound cargo, containers and vessels and detecting illegal cargo, smuggling and other contraband within the sea and air environment. Additionally he served as the training coordinator for Port Everglades.

In 2007, he was selected as a Supply Chain Security Specialist (SCSS) for the C-TPAT program where he conducted numerous supply chain security validations and advised domestic / foreign companies throughout the world on C-TPAT's minimum security criteria.

After working as an SCSS, Mr. Krupinsky moved to C-TPAT Headquarters in Washington, DC as a Program Manager and was promoted to Supervisor and then Branch Chief of the International Branch. Current duties include overseeing C-TPAT's international engagements with foreign governments and their supply chain security programs, mutual recognition arrangements, training/outreach, day-to-day program activities, budget and travel oversight, and other duties as assigned.
